

Summer 2009 Fatherhood Conference

The Fundamental Virtues of Fatherhood

by Patrick F. Fagan

June 20, 2009 (Saturday)

9:00am - 12:00pm

United Way - 50 Waugh Drive, Houston

Pat Fagan will focus on these five fundamental tasks:

- Family life
- Earning your living
- Understanding your environment
- Being a citizen
- Grappling with God

Doing these well means cultivating the strength needed for each. While there are myriad virtues in play in all these tasks some are 'sine qua non'. In preparation you can start figuring out what these five key strengths are.

Patrick F. Fagan is Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Research on Marriage and Religion, where he examines the relationships among family, marriage, religion, community, and America's social problems as illustrated in the social sciences research data. He was also a former Deputy Assistant Health and Human Services Secretary at The Heritage Foundation.

A native of Ireland, Pat earned his Bachelor of Social Science degree with a double major in sociology and social administration, and a professional graduate degree in psychology (dip. psych.) as well as a Ph.D. in social policy from University College Dublin. Fagan started his career as a grade school teacher in Cork, Ireland, then returned to college to become a psychologist, going to Canada to practice then to Washington, D.C. to pursue a doctorate in clinical psychology.
